

Abstract

An arrangement and method for acceptance or return of objects for a deposit and/or for a lending system has an acceptance zone for intake of the object, a reading device to ascertain the association of the object with a specific deposit or a lending system, a transporting device for transporting the object and at least one blocking member through which, upon positive ascertainment by the reading device, the object is transported.